These wonderfully soft mats are made exclusively for us. They are decorative but also very practical. As well as preventing delicate surfaces from getting scratched, the brushed wool also acts as a heat shield. The major advantage compared with felt is that our material copes well with being washed.

Information about materials

The natural grease and texture of the brushed wool makes the mats dirt-repellent. Liquids roll off the wool instead of soaking in straightaway. Wool is naturally antistatic, so it attracts less dry dirt. It's best to knock off dirt immediately and rinse the mat under cold running water. Don't rub the mat. Then, carefully press the water out of the wool and lay it flat on a tea towel to dry. If necessary, smooth into shape and gently press with a steam iron.

- * Mulesing involves removing the skin from around the tail of a sheep, without anaesthetic. The procedure is often performed in Australia and New Zealand to protect the animals against parasitic infection (flystrike).
